

Institution's profile

EBS Paris is one of seven related schools in Europe; the others are in London, Frankfurt, Madrid, Milan, Munich, Dublin, and Kaliningrad. Founded in 1967, it trains young managers in international business in a four-year undergraduate curriculum and a one-year master's programs.

The French government recognizes EBS, and its degrees are accredited by the Ministry of Education. EBS maintains cooperative agreements with more than 50 universities and institutions around the world. The faculty consists of academics and business professionals. There is an active network of 5,800 alumni in 60 countries and alumni occupy top positions in a wide variety of businesses. Each year the school enrolls 250 new undergraduates.

EBS's "Visiting Students" program is taught in English. Several master's programs are offered in both French and English.

Serious effort is made to recruit international students, integrate them fully into the school, and help them learn French.

Main programs

Three concentrations are possible in the fourth and fifth years:

4th year: international business – financial management – marketing communication

5th year: international business and management – management in science y management

Research

EBS's research center (IREBS) focuses on business and social problems in the countries of Europe. The center's European partners participate in the work of French researchers under the direction of university professors. The center publishes a biennial review. An annual colloquium will be held.
